

Meeting with representatives of the National Prayer Breakfast
Chapters from the United States of America and Rwanda

Remarks by H.E. Mrs Jeannette Kagame

Kigali, 20 February 2016

Dear brothers and sisters from the US,
Dear fellow Rwandans,

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to Rwanda, after two weeks for some of you, and be with you on this day, as we aim to build on the guiding principles of the National Prayer Breakfast.

This kind of gathering, which fosters fellowship and sharing, is truly relevant in the current world we live in; a world that sees senseless violence on a regular basis, affecting the lives of too many people, across many parts of the globe.

We are witnessing our leaders having to rethink this new world order, challenging their ability to spread again values of respect and brotherhood, across the many communities of this world.

These threats to our humanity force us to re-evaluate how we relate, and treat, one another, as we aim to find a sustainable solution to put an end to them. While countering these threats requires us to anchor, teach, and emulate positive values around us, I believe we must also nurture strong relationships across the board; relationships that will stand the test of time and the challenges our nations will face along the way.

It is my belief that in these fellowships, we are cultivating a fundamentally positive practice of bringing together diverse leaders to reflect on the right path for their nations.

Through the National Prayer Breakfast forum, we reaffirm our choices. Our choices of being united, accountable, hence, being a source of inspiration, encouragement, accountability, and shared vision, allowing people to identify their needs, carry burdens for one another, and become one again, as stated in Amos 3:3, 'Do two walk together unless they have agreed to do so?'

The special gathering of this morning reminds us that when working with like-minded individuals, we are capable of accomplishing great things, while walking in harmony in this journey of repairing this humanity.

I believe these great things do indeed become reality when we allow ourselves to trust our faith to guide us, and when we seek the kind of friendships that provide mutual guidance; encouragement during difficult times; and most importantly, support in times of crisis.

We therefore remain focused as we work to establish more relationships that push us to be the best we can be, while staying humble in serving a higher purpose.

I thank you for being with us and wish you a blessed stay in our land of a thousand hills, please keep coming back.
